WHEN MASTERY DOESN'T SCALE

WHAT'S CHANGING FOR AGENCIES?

Richard Hill: CEO and Founder of eComOne agency

"In 2025, agencies need to double down on strategic thinking. With automation doing more of the heavy lifting, clients are looking for partners who can interpret the data, challenge assumptions, and shape real growth strategies—not just manage campaigns, but become a growth partner"

Harry Calvin Williams: Director of Growth at Found. agency

"In a privacy-first world, relying solely on last-click attribution no longer cuts it—successful brands embrace customer-centric, test-and-calibrate strategies. Growth comes from channel-specific approaches that respect each platform's unique audience and purpose. By moving beyond last-click, brands often uncover untapped opportunities, especially in emerging or less competitive spaces."

MAKE AI WORK FOR YOU

Advertising fuels e-commerce growth, and AI-powered platforms optimize for your goals. But as automation lowers entry barriers, competition rises, driving up costs.

AI prioritizes easy wins—like branded searches—while platforms push to justify ad spend.

The key? Feed the AI with the right business data to steer it in your favor.

Take control. Make AI work for you, not the other way around. 🚀

PRACTICAL STEPS FOR AGENCIES

Enhance tracking & analytics with APIs
and first-party data

→ E.g.:

- Audience Segmentation with first-party data

Use AI tools strategically for automation and optimization

→ E.g.:

- Producthero for smart & automated optimizations (or others)
- Google's AI Pre-Built audiences

Invest in customer insights to reduce cookie dependency

→ E.g.:

- GA4, server-side tagging
- Develop frameworks for tracking influence
- Educate your client on the New Metrics That Matter

Multichannel approach

→ E.g.:

- Track where your Audience actually pays attention
